MY MAMA WAS A ROLLING STONE

André is in his mid-fifties and still lives with his mother, the 80-year-old actress Louise. He leads a rather unspectacular existence as a taxi driver, dedicated to his hobby, but hardly daring to speak to Steffi, the attractive and younger woman selling sausages at the model-plane airfield, where he flies his precious model planes. One day a stranger from America arrives at their doorstep. His name is Bill and he’ll soon turn their tranquil life upside-down. For the first time in his life, André has to wake up from his lethargy and face a few facts in his life. Well, it’s never too late to start life and love...

"A delicious character study of a sheltered, smothered man who finally finds the spirit to break free of his domineering mother."

THE HOLLYWOOD REPORTER

DIRECTOR
Bettina Oberli

After her debut IM NORDWIND (2004) Bettina Oberli received awards at the Zurich Film Festival and the Schwerin Art of Film Festival, she wrote and directed LATE BLOOMERS in 2006. The film became the most successful Swiss film in cinemas in 30 years and was sold all over the world. It was part of the official entry at the Academy Awards in 2008.
