SYNOPSIS

The 18-years old Danny and Ludwig come from two completely different worlds: Ludwig leads the life of a wealthy son, whilst the musical talent Danny needs to count every penny. When they accidentally meet for the first time at a big leisure park, they immediately realise one major similarity - They look the exact same. After their initial confusion they use this to their benefit and immerse themselves into each of their different lives: Now Ludwig relishes in the solidarity of Danny's warm hearted family, while Danny has an unexpected and luxurious time off during which he can practice for his upcoming song contest performance. It is not long before the first problems arise and their identity swop gets out of control with Danny's nosy foster sister Lilly taking a good share. Everything seems to be gearing towards a spectacular showdown at the big song contest...

DIRECTOR

Born 1982 in Saarbrücken, Florian Ross shot his first film at the age of 16. He trained as media designer in Düsseldorf, created short films and music videos, worked as director and editor. In 2007 he received his first award at a short film festival with his movie CLOONEY. Ross studied direction at International Filmschool Cologne (ifs) and is a member of the European Web Video Academy since 2013. He got his Bachelor of Arts in 2014 and had been working as a director for various feature and commercial films ever since. In 2018 he had his feature film debut with A JAR FULL OF LIFE with german stars Matthias Schweighöfer and Jella Haase in the lead roles. TAKEOVER is Florian's second theatrical feature film as a director.
